

Archived at the Flinders Academic Commons:
<http://hdl.handle.net/2328/27231>

This is a scan of a document number DUN/Speeches/2334 in the Dunstan Collection, Special Collections, Flinders University Library.
<http://www.flinders.edu.au/library/info/collections/special/dunstan/>

Title:

Press release: Demolition of Education Department building

Please acknowledge the source as:
Dunstan Collection, Flinders University Library.
Identifier: DUN/Speeches/2334

© Copyright Estate Donald Allan Dunstan

PRESS RELEASE FROM THE ACTING PREMIER, MR CORCORAN.

19.12.73

The Education Department Building in Flinders Street was of doubtful architectural merit and had not been awarded any classification by the National Trust, the Acting Premier, Mr Corcoran, said today.

He was reaffirming the Government's decision to demolish the building.

"The decision was made after careful consideration of all the facts, and demolition will go ahead", he said.

Mr Corcoran said the Government was sympathetic to the need to preserve old buildings and had demonstrated this in the past. However, it believed that to retain and maintain the Education Department Building would not only be a waste of money, but would obstruct the proper development of the site and its environs.

The new building to be erected had been architecturally designed to fit in with the total development of Victoria Square.

Mr Corcoran added that the Government had decided to preserve the old Attorney-General's Building in Flinders Street, which had been classified by the National Trust.

---

PRESS RELEASE FROM THE ACTING PREMIER, MR CORCORAN.

19.12.73

The Education Department Building in Flinders Street was of doubtful architectural merit and had not been awarded any classification by the National Trust, the Acting Premier, Mr Corcoran, said today.

He was reaffirming the Government's decision to demolish the building.

"The decision was made after careful consideration of all the facts, and demolition will go ahead", he said.

Mr Corcoran said the Government was sympathetic to the need to preserve old buildings and had demonstrated this in the past. However, it believed that to retain and maintain the Education Department Building would not only be a waste of money, but would obstruct the proper development of the site and its environs.

The new building to be erected had been architecturally designed to fit in with the total development of Victoria Square.

Mr Corcoran added that the Government had decided to preserve the old Attorney-General's Building in Flinders Street, which had been classified by the National Trust.

---